Dark Velvet

Elegant Café in extraordinary way.

That is why it attracts special people.

Especially Sandro Dragoj, admirable painter and founder of Infernalismus group, who has begun organizer of many events in here. Another ones are Tereza and Jakub Dobrovič's who are writers and regular customer in local Absinth Club.

DarkVelvet is very grateful to those people and to many other ones for their cooperation.

You have already come in and sat down. Now it is time to read in our menu.

There is many possibilities. From tasteful coffee (flavoured with violet, rose or lavender), to tea of good quality or homemade quiche. Of course, we cannot forget about absint, which is not only great alcoholic drink but also an inspiration to many people.

While being here, you can look through ongoing exhibition and there is also a bookcase.

Our garden is open during the summer and is accompanied by the small waterfall.

So enjoy your time that you spend in our Café as you wish because the time seems to be very relative in here.

Yours DarkVelvet.

Crodino dates back to 1964 from the Italian region of Piedmont - the northernmost province of Verbano Cusio-Ossola. It is a balanced bitter-sweet non-alcoholic aperitif. The name Crodino originated from the word Crodo, which is the name of a settlement in the province of Verbano Cusio-Ossola.

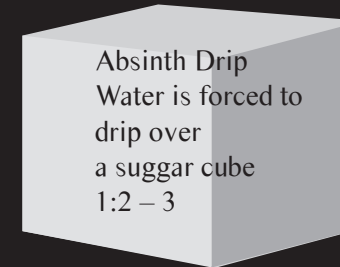

Absinth

History of Absinth probably began in 18th century in Swiss Couvet, where the first recipe was written by doctor Pierre Ordinaire. In 1792 was Absinth patented and called as “medicine for everything”.

The recipe was given to Henriodovs sisters, who were selling Absinth as healing medicine. Furthermore is documented. Certain major Dubied got the recipe and established the first distillery of Absinth in 1797.

Second distillery was open in 1805 in French Pontalieu. It was called Mison Pernod Fils and it was the greatest producer of Absinth in France till its prohibition in 1914.

Absinth was one of the most favourite alcoholic drinks during the second half of the 19th century in Europe. Especially among impressionists. The well known ones are Vincent Van Gogh, Edgar Allan Poe, Charles Baudelaire, Guy De Mopassant, Paul Verlaine and Oscar Wilde. Also Ernest Hemingway and Pablo Picasso were inspired by Absinth.
